

British Values in History at Bisley Blue Coat

C of E Primary School

Rule of Law

In history, children follow rules in our classroom to ensure it is a safe place to be. They learn about different leadership regimes from around the world and how different laws existed. They are able to make comparisons between life in the past and life now in this regard.

Individual Liberty

In history, when learning about historical events, children will begin to understand peoples individual liberties from the past and how this has impacted our lives now.

Democracy

In history, children will consider what it was like for individuals during different time periods and consider themselves in the positions of others and the concept of fairness. Pupils study periods of history where democracy plays a prominent role, discuss advantages and disadvantages and look at the impact and result of these times. Examples of this include Ancient Greece and WWII.

Tolerance of others with different faiths and beliefs

Children consider questions about identity and belonging when learning about different religious beliefs during different historical periods. When comparing people during different time periods and how they lived, children will consider the effects of religion on their lives and the impact on society.

Mutual Respect

Children are taught and encouraged to show respect to each other's beliefs, feelings and opinions by giving each child a forum to share these with the expectation that these must be listened to. When discussing what it means to be British and how this is demonstrated in different historical time periods, children can celebrate our heritage whilst embracing the ties which bind us together.
